

A Public Apology to Mr. Peter Long

Reesha Dyer

April 21, 2014

I would like to issue this public statement expressing my deepest regret at distracting Mr. Long from his dissertation by sending him pictures such as the one shown in figure 1.

Figure 1: A Baby Hedgehog

I appreciate that it was foolish of me to assume that Mr. Long was sensible enough not to allow these images to distract him, and I in no way was attempting to imply that his situation was in any way similar to that of the hedgehog shown in figure 2.

Figure 2: A Hedgehog Stuck in a Cardboard Tube

I understand that a dissertation is a difficult thing to write, and Mr. Long should have been displaying the work ethic shown in figure 3.

Figure 3: A Hedgehog at a Keyboard

He should not have been displaying the work ethic shown in figure 4, and I understand that I was not helping him in this regard.

Figure 4: A Hedgehog in a Martini Glass

I can see now that, whilst images such as that shown in figure 5 are very adorable, they actually have very little to do with World War Two, and are thus not very applicable to Mr. Long's dissertation.

Figure 5: A Very Young Hedgehog on an Apple

Furthermore, I understand that even if an image is in some way relevant to WW2, as is the case for figure 6, Mr. Long's dissertation is very specialised, and these images will probably not be helpful.

Figure 6: A Hedgehog dressed in a soldier costume

I can appreciate why my hedgehog messages made Mr. Long feel like the individual in figure 7.

Figure 7: A Disgruntled Hedgehog

Although I am still suspicious that they actually made him feel like the individual in figure 8, because hedgehogs are adorable.

Figure 8: A Happy Hedgehog

more awesome pictures at THEMETAPICTURE.COM

As of today, I promise I shall no longer send Mr. Long photographs of hedgehogs, even if they are wearing hats, as in figure 9.

Figure 9: A Hedgehog in a Hat

Furthermore, I wish him every success in his dissertation, so that he may be like the individual in figure 10, and he can party like the individual in figure 11.

Figure 10: A Graduating Hedgehog

Figure 11: A Drunken Hedgehog

I hope that my indiscretions will be forgiven, and our friendship will continue, much like the friendship displayed in figure 12.

Figure 12: A Hedgehog and a Bunny

If not, I shall be very saddened, much like the individual in figure 13.

Figure 13: A Sad Hedgehog

Finally, I would like to thank Mr. Long for allowing me this opportunity to express my regret publicly, and to thank him for his consideration of my apology.

Reesha Dyer (represented by a Hedgehog in figure 14)

Figure 14: A Hedgehog in a Tutu

