Society for Scholarly Publishing
Innovative People Advancing Scholarly Communication

This is the writing template for the “Sprint Beyond the Book” sessions at SSP 2016. We invite you to join our team of science fiction authors, scholars, digital publishers, journalists, and technologists to write, edit, assemble and publish a book about the future of scholarly publishing on-the-fly in 72 hours.

We will employ a variety of collaborative technologies and explore the idea of writing as a performance. In order to pull off this ambitious plan, we need your help! Please stop by to help brainstorm, write, or edit contributions.

Each concurrent session will confront participants with different provocation about the future of scholarly publishing.

Introduction

Welcome to Overleaf! Simply write your text on the left and see it composed automatically in the preview window on the right. Some examples of commonly used commands and features are listed below, to help you get started.

If you have a question, please use the help menu (“?”) on the top bar to search for help or to ask us a question.

How to create Sections and Subsections

Use section and subsections to organize your document. Simply use the section and subsection buttons in the toolbar to create them, and we’ll handle all the formatting and numbering automatically.

How to add Lists

You can make lists with automatic numbering:

1. Like this,
2. and like this.

or with bullet points:

- Like this,
- and like this.

using the buttons in the toolbar.

Special characters

Some common characters have special meanings in  $\LaTeX$ :

- % percent sign
- # hash sign
- & ampersand
- $ dollar sign

If you just type these you'll get an error; you'll need to precede these symbols with a backslash in order for it to appear in the output (as in the examples above).

You can include accented characters (e.g. if you were writing your résumé) in the usual way.

How to add Comments

Comments which appear in the editor pane (but not in the final pdf) can be added to your project by clicking on the comment icon in the toolbar above. These are useful for adding notes to the editors (or for editors to leave notes for the author). To reply to a comment, simply click the reply button in the lower right corner of the comment, and you can close them when you're done.

How to include Figures

First you have to upload the image file from your computer using the 'Add Files' option in the project menu. Then use the `includegraphics` command to include it in your document. Use the `figure` environment and the `caption` command to add a number and a caption to your figure. See the code for Figure 1 in this section for an example.

How to include citations to references

Here is an example of a citation<sup>1</sup> – the reference appears in the margin. The actual entry itself is stored in the `references.bib` file.

Rather than agonizing over how to write each entry, you can look up a reference in Google Scholar, then click on the 'Cite' link below the item you need. In the pop-up window that appears, you should see a 'BibTeX' link. Click on that, and you can copy and paste the code into your `references.bib` file. Here's a video to help you along: <https://www.overleaf.com/help/97>
